

Complaints of people to be solved qualitatively in fixed time : Chief Minister

Any laxity with regards to this would be unpardonable : Chief Minister

A new Feeding Center of people's problem redressal system established at the Chief Minister's Office

For effective monitoring of the 'Jan Sunvai' system, an IAS officer posted at the Chief Minister's Office

Lucknow : 13 June, 2017

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath ji has directed all officials to ensure that the problems of people received at their end are resolved in a fixed timeframe and qualitatively. He also warned officials against any laxity in this direction and said if done, it would be unpardonable.

Giving this information, a state government spokesman today said that a new feeding center was established today at the Chief Minister's office with regards to problems received by the Chief Minister during the 'Janata Darshan' and from other mediums.

Based on the directives of the Chief Minister not only was this center has been established but the strength of the work force has also been increased to 50. The spokesman also informed that to make monitoring of the grievances received and their resolution more effective, an IAS officer has been deputed at the Chief Minister's office, whose responsibility is to qualitatively, effectively get the problems resolved in set time lines.
